

This page describes the patchwork of federal, state, and local policies and regulations pertaining to renewable energy systems that impact project development.

Explore key U.S. solar policy changes from May 2024, including state-level reforms, federal shifts, and trade updates impacting the industry.

In the wake of this directive, the federal government has taken actions to encourage the deployment of renewable energy and other low-carbon energy sources.

Just one solar project has been approved on federal lands since Trump took office in January, and none have been permitted since July when Interior Secretary Doug Burgum ordered ...

At the federal level, there are several key policies, programs, and regulations that impact the development of solar PV and other renewable energy projects, influencing project procurement ...

Policymakers must craft comprehensive legislation that provides clear guidelines for energy development, balancing economic needs with environmental protection. Federal agencies ...

-- Today the Solar Energy Industries Association (SEIA) is unveiling a new policy agenda that details the critical actions that local, state, and federal leaders must take to strengthen the ...

Roughly half of the United States does not have policies to enable community solar. Several states introduced bills this year to implement community solar, but every bill in a state ...

With an ambitious target of generating 40% of the nation's electricity from solar sources by 2035, the law establishes unprecedented tax credits for solar installations, streamlines permitting ...

Electricity generation by the U.S. electric power sector totaled about 4,260 billion kilowatthours (BkWh) in 2025. In our latest Short-Term Energy Outlook (STEO), we expect U.S. ...

Web: <https://www.inalaaccelerator.co.za>