

Will trump end preferential treatment for solar and wind energy?

REUTERS/Nathan Frandino/File Photo (Reuters) -The Trump administration said on Thursday that decisions related to solar and wind energy facilities on federal lands will be reviewed by the office of Interior Secretary Doug Burgum to end what it says has been preferential treatment for the renewable energy sources.

Are solar panels a problem?

But an emerging problem in the U.S. solar business that installs panels on homes risks slowing the effort to cut the country's emissions. Customer complaints against the country's residential rooftop solar industry have increased dramatically in recent years. One-star ratings on Solar Reviews increased more than 1,000% since 2018.

Do wind and solar energy projects need a review?

Gregory Wischer, Interior's deputy chief of staff for policy, wrote in the memo that "all decisions, actions, consultations, and other undertakings -- including but not limited to the following -- related to wind and solar energy facilities" require Burgum's review.

Do solar and wind energy projects need a personal sign-off?

Solar and wind energy projects must now get Interior Secretary Doug Burgum's personal sign-off to receive permits across the hundreds of millions of federal acres under his department's control, according to an internal memo obtained by POLITICO.

Tom Kenning investigates the scale of local opposition to solar projects and the measures developers are employing to win back support.

(Reuters) -President Donald Trump's administration said on Thursday that decisions related to solar and wind energy projects on federal lands will be reviewed by Interior Secretary Doug ...

Solar Energy Growth Patterns Over the past decade, solar power installations have seen remarkable increases, with annual records being set continuously. However, the trends signal a ...

The government's solar panel U-turn underscores the difficulty of building a supply chain untainted by abuses UK energy secretary Ed Miliband in Beijing last month.

The solar panels on your roof aren't just creating green energy they've also entered the national security spotlight. As more homes install rooftop solar, cybersecurity experts and ...

Trump signs order as new GOP tax law accelerates clean energy credit phaseouts, creating uncertainty for wind and solar project developers.

The directive puts these renewable energy projects under heightened scrutiny at Interior in a move that could slow approvals and construction.

This week's debate in the House of Commons is just one in a long line of political discussions around the increased role solar is due to play within our energy network. Led by Dr ...

The rooftop solar business is a big source of consumer complaints. Across the country, prosecutors are investigating sales practices and financing arrangements. Now the solar industry is ...

EU Solar lobby reverses its Huawei ban after legal and political pressures, highlighting tensions in Europe's clean energy governance and security risks.

Web: <https://www.inalaaccelerator.co.za>