

In late 2022, the Biden administration imposed tariffs on solar modules from four Southeast Asian countries but delayed their implementation for two years to ensure business continuity.

In his announcement, the President included an exemption for bifacial solar panels. This decision comes after the ITC recommended in November 2021 to extend the safeguard tariffs for an additional four years.

As previously reported, the Biden Administration is expected to re-impose double-digit tariffs on bifacial solar modules, which currently account for 98% of all modules imported into the United States.

-- In a win for the solar industry, the U.S. Court of International Trade (CIT) re-instated the exclusion of bifacial solar modules from the Section 201 tariffs.

In a significant policy shift, the Biden administration has reinstated tariffs on imported bifacial solar panels, reversing a two-year exemption. This move, driven by domestic manufacturers" ...

The Biden administration kept the bifacial exemption when it extended the tariffs in 2022. The ITC released its midterm review of the Sec. 201 solar panel tariffs in February 2024 and commented on the ...

When considering the switch to bifacial solar panels, it's crucial to weigh their pros and cons. Here's a succinct breakdown to help you quickly discern the potential benefits and drawbacks.

The Biden Administration is expected to revoke tariff exemptions on bifacial solar modules following a petition led by Qcells, a company with a multi-billion-dollar investment in U.S. manufacturing.

President Biden issued Proclamation 10779, ending the exemption from Section 201 duties on bifacial solar panels imported on or after June 26. Find out if your products are affected.

President Biden issued Proclamation 10779 on June 21, 2024 removing the exemption from Section 201 duties on solar cells for "bifacial solar panels" that are imported on or after June 26, at 12:01 ...

Web: <https://www.inalaaccelerator.co.za>